

The Introduction of Mathematic and Science Education Research

This course will introduce the past, present, and future for nature of mathematic and science education. Also, history of mathematic and science curriculum will be presented.

In addition, philosophy of mathematic and science education will be discussed. Furthermore, instruction models for mathematic and science learning will be initiated.

Moreover, methods for assessing students' problem solving ability of mathematic and science will be evaluated.