

Nature of Science and Science Education

The course introduces the following contents to students: (1) the nature of science based on the schools of philosophy and its importance in science learning; (2) the instructional strategies that we can adopt to teach nature of science in science classroom; (3) the assessment methods that we can choose to measure the nature of science; (4) how to design the research to explore the nature of science that students have.