

Conceptual Change in Science

The theories of science learning are investigated to realize how students learn. Students' alternative conceptions in several topics are illustrated, include optics, electricity, heat, force, gaseous state, particulate, conservation and earth. Additionally, the strategies to diagnosis students' alternative conceptions are studied. The teaching activities and models for facilitating conceptual change are also presented.