National Sun Yat-sen University, Taiwan

The National Sun Yat-sen University in Taiwan has initiated a plan to establish a new Center for Theoretical and Computational Physics and recruiting up to 6 new faculties within the next 3 years. The newly hired faculties will be jointly appointed by the Department of Physics and other related departments. The Center invites applications in the areas of theoretical and computational physics and material sciences, in particular we welcome candidates from the fields but not limited to artificial intelligence, quantum computing, and numerical and large-scale simulations. The applicants must have a Ph.D. in physics, or a closely-related field, preferably with postdoctoral experience. The successful candidates will be required to pursue independent research programs and teach physics core courses at all levels. The starting date is Feb. 01, 2021 or Aug. 01, 2021, while the ranks of these positions are open, depending on qualifications.
